unfazed by any celebrity trappings. "We overlooked the externals and said, 'Who is this person?'" says Baldwin. Adds Thomas: "I didn't expect to fall in love with somebody who was 26 years my senior, but you cannot help who you fall in love with."

She also quickly embraced 16-year-old Ireland—Baldwin's daughter from his first marriage, to Kim Basinger, which ended in 2002. "Ireland's great," says Thomas, who tapped her stepdaughter to be her maid of honor. "She made me feel very, very welcome." Adds Baldwin: "My daughter is as in love with her as everyone else."

The bride, who wore an Amsale gown, and the groom, who donned a Tom Ford tux, exchanged vows in a traditional Catholic ceremony before moving to the Kimmel Center at New York University, Baldwin's alma mater, to celebrate. "It was the best party I've ever been to!" says Thomas, whose family flew in from Mallorca, Spain, for the occasion. "[Everyone] is saying, 'Can

All the Details!

"We didn't hire a wedding planner, and I'm not an expert bride," says Thomas of her preparations. "But everybody had a good time!"

THE CAKE

The bride broke her usual no-sugar rule for the five-tiered confection.

THE ROOM

When an Italian restaurant couldn't accommodate their guest list, they moved to the Kimmel Center.

THE RINGS

"We are a good team," is inscribed in Spanish inside their Cartier bands.
